And on his grave they shed their tears, --the tears Of brother, and of son! Slowly, they turned Away! No spoken word the silence broke, As they retraced their way into the camp! And, when the people saw that Aaron did Not come, they knew that he was dead! The fact Was told throughout the camp, --and so they mourned The death of God s High priest for thirty days! The Cloud removed again! And now, to shun The land of Edom, they pursued a way Averse to their desire;--and then again, The people fell into despondent mood, --And made severe complaint, of everything;--Of Moses, and of God! They loathed their food Divinely given! They feared they here would die Of thirst, in this wide desert waste! They brought Upon themselves the anger of the Lord! And poisonous serpents came into the camp--Swift, writhing, hissing, loathsome snakes! And thousands bitten, --died! The hosts appalled With fear, to Moses came and said: We ve sinned Against the Lord!--and if thou shield us not We all must die! Entreat the Lord for us, -- That He may take away these serpents vile!--And save us from this fearful death! Once more, He told the Lord their woe, and prayed in their Behalf. His prayer was heard;--and he was told To make a serpent--like the ones they feared--Of brass; and set it high upon a pole! That dying men, in all the camp, might look To it--and live!--
